

Leonora Buskin is a certified arts educator whose aspiration in life is to share her passion for the fine arts with others. She has over seven years of experience developing and delivering arts programming for various age groups, from toddlers to seniors. She is also the former Festival Assistant of three notable Toronto-based festivals: Harbourfront Centre’s Ashkenaz Festival, along with Sunday Serenades and The Cultura Festival at Mel Lastman Square. Leonora values the arts as a means of self-expression, experiential learning, cultural programming and community building. She is passionate about bringing together diverse communities to celebrate arts and cultural heritage, as well as building bridges between contemporary artists and their communities.
